MARGINAL COLUMN By MRS. MINDLIN

THE value of television, like that of any other medium, depends upon the use you make of it. We would not like to see it being potentially dangerous in the hands of a demagogue, though when you come to think of it, not much is added to the power of sound radio in this respect, except a certain advantage for the photographic mass-character. British T.V., however, moves on to the next level, the opposite direction of such apocalyptic nightmares. In its presentation of the news and political debates and campaigning, it seems too tame and over-cautious to show all sides of a question, a tendency certainly preferable to a biased view, but which often takes the guise of an issue, or may actually dissipate it in a flash of changing angles of vision. One cannot deny that the news does become much more vivid when you see the persons and places involved, and less imaginative viewers must be stirred by seeing the victims of a raid or disaster, or never would be printed word (how the viewer is affected by seeing the Soviet tank columns and the Algerian terrorists training in that village a month earlier, we could not say — his ability to reach a reasoned conclusion probably depends on his general political maturity).

THIS entertainment program provided for the mass public a series of bad movies, and in fact, may include old films. We would not pretend to distinguish between the two in this field. Programmes interesting enough to draw away from a good book are rare. The news, however, generally well-done, and often well-chosen, though the small screen will never replace the live report that is the exclusive property of the theatre.

PRELIMINARILY speaking, we should say that there seems to be no pressing need for the institution of television in Israel. The B.B.C. and Independent television networks can only provide a relatively small percentage of good work in the limited number of hours on the air, then what would we have to show? We know our capabilities and limitations, and we know our needs. The severe limitations of the television medium, for all its (rather artificial) advantages, are too obvious to need to be stated. It is a medium which is well suited to the dissemination of propaganda, but it is ill-suited to the dissemination of news, and it is ill-suited to the dissemination of education.

AS for the educational value of T.V., it is great potentialities cannot be denied, and we have a great educational task to perform. The home and the school are the two main centers of education, and we must use the best possible to do it. In the home, we are chiefly interested in being entertained, and only incidentally, and in the school, which is a solemn place, and we must use the best possible to do it. In the home, we are chiefly interested in being entertained, and only incidentally, and in the school, which is a solemn place, and we must use the best possible to do it.

THE same week that we were mulling over our television impressions we had occasion to visit the home of a painter to bring him regards. He had been famous enough several decades ago in his Central European homeland, but he had not had a show here for almost a decade. After dinner, with a mingled sense of mild curiosity and politeness, we asked to see his work. Sitting in a corner of the sofa, we watched with growing wonder and delight as one after another the accumulated paintings of color and form that reached a perfection almost too respectful and relaxed, and then broke out into new fields of visual exploration. Some of the pictures were purely abstract and abstruse, and would satisfy the most refined of tastes; others were simple and direct, and were eminently suitable for a public building, though the same master hand had been at work. But dealers were uninterested, because they thought (perhaps even mistakenly) that these pictures did not fit the selling fads of the moment, and he was not the man to pursue or persuade them. Back in Israel, another painter had recently remarked to me: "Poor people paint pictures, rich people buy them. A good picture can hang for a hundred years in a bar or a bathroom, but will eventually come into a museum. But there they are, cluttering up that studio and changing it into a treasure house, but one reserved for too few — through the fluctuations of the fashion, and, above all, the art market. Abdullah Adopts Resolution On 'Non-Identification'

By MARK SEGAL, Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV, Sunday. — The Abdullaha party convention closed tonight after three days of deliberations, with a call for an independent foreign policy of non-identification with the world's power blocs.

The party adopted a number of resolutions on foreign policy and domestic policy. The convention called on the party's representatives in the Government to initiate proposals for action to combat the economic crisis, and to support the recent developments in the Gaza Strip and the stationing of Israeli troops on the Egyptian border.

The party also welcomed the recent formation of the Arab union in the area, and called on the Government to take steps to ensure that they favor peace with Israel.

The convention also expressed its determined opposition to Israel's joining any foreign military treaty organization.

Other foreign policy resolutions called for actions to be taken to ensure that the Arab union in the area, and the stationing of Israeli troops on the Egyptian border, and the recent developments in the Gaza Strip and the stationing of Israeli troops on the Egyptian border.

U.S. Officials Sure Summit Talks to Be Held in 1958

WASHINGTON, Sunday (Reuter). — Officials here were confident today that summit talks will be held this year although they say latest Soviet moves have done little to bring about such a conference.

Tito Charges West Evading Summit

BELGRADE, Sunday (Reuter). — President Tito accused the Western powers today of trying to sabotage East-West summit talks.

"I was happy when I saw the Soviet proposals, which were constructive and realistic," he told a cheering crowd of 100,000 in Belgrade.

He added: "Now there are various counter-proposals and evasions in order that the meeting should not take place. By every means there is an attempt to sabotage and avoid this meeting."

Tito said Yugoslavia could not keep silent over the situation in that country, where the methods used to end the problem "cause the human spirit." Yugoslavia felt deeply with "all these colonial peoples who are fighting for their existence," he said.

He said that France's new proposal for a Mediterranean pact is aimed at dividing the African and Arab world and "causes an even more difficult situation which can bring about serious conflict." Such a new pact would be a "new disaster," he declared.

Russia Fires Third A-Test in 48 Hours

WASHINGTON, Sunday (UP). — Mr. Lewis L. Strauss, Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, announced last night that the Soviet Union conducted another nuclear weapons test yesterday.

He said only one test of the Soviet Union's nuclear weapons was announced yesterday, but Strauss said the Soviet Union had conducted another test.

No 'Chain Reaction' in West As Result of U.S. Recession

LONDON, Sunday (Reuter). — The U.S. recession, with its postwar record of five million unemployed, has hit many countries to a greater or lesser extent, but has failed, so far, to justify fears of a severe "chain reaction," Reuter reports in a survey from many countries.

Sterling and non-dollar currencies, in fact, have held up far better than was expected to the recession and the commodity slump.

Many countries — including Britain, Canada, India, West Germany and Holland — record rising unemployment figures. But apart from the recession, which particularly affects the rise and fall of the economic tides of the U.S., the recession is not the dominating cause.

Experts' Estimates

In the U.S. itself, Government economists estimate that the present unemployment figure of 8,173,000 must fall by at least 800,000 this month to bring about the beginning of the end of the recession.

President Eisenhower has predicted that job opportunities will pick up, and that business will improve. His confidence has prompted him to decide against cutting taxes for another month and against starting vast public works projects.

March unemployment figures, therefore, are anxiously awaited.

Falling retail sales have accompanied the rise in unemployment and to combat the trend the Administration is trying to persuade businessmen and consumers into a mood of confidence that the economy will be back on an even keel by midsummer.

Ask Recognition Of Bizerta Base As Tunisian

TUNIS, Sunday (Reuter). — Tunisia will ask France to recognize the naval base at Bizerta as Tunisian territory, under proposals for a settlement of the Franco-Tunisian dispute, informed sources said in Tunis today.

These proposals will be taken to Paris tomorrow by one or both of the special Good Offices envoys — Mr. Robert Murphy (U.S.) and Mr. Harold Seelye (Britain).

SYRIANS FIRE AT ISRAEL SHEPHERD

TIBERIAS, Sunday. — Syrian snipers fired at a shepherd with his flock near the border at about 10 o'clock this morning.

The shepherd, a member of the Ma'ayan Baruch kibbutz, was grazing his flock near the border at the time. He returned the fire and withdrew with his herd, escaping injury. The shepherd made out five Syrians who had dug themselves in just across the border. They fired at him from a short distance and kept up the fire for about 15 minutes.

Sudan Recognizes Egypt-Syria Union

The Sudanese Government has formally recognized the United Arab Republic, and a note to that effect was being handed to the Egyptian Ambassador in Khartoum, Reuter reported from the Sudan capital last night.

On the second day of his visit to Aleppo (Syria) yesterday, Nasser delivered speeches to cheering crowds and received delegations from various organizations in northern Syria. Damascus Radio reported that Nasser had pledged full support to "Arab liberation" in all Arab countries.

He was ordered released in ILA-000 bond.

A similar request by Heruti was refused on Friday by Judge N. Barak of the District Court.

Israel Outside Area Of Proposed Mid-Sea Pact

There was no official confirmation in Jerusalem last night of reports that the French Premier, M. Felix Gaillard, discussed with Israeli diplomats on Friday the proposed West Mediterranean pact. One authoritative source said that it was hardly likely since Israel could not be considered part of the West Mediterranean pact.

M. Gaillard met with the Assistant Director-General of the Israel Foreign Ministry, Mr. Y. Nahmias, and the Israeli Charge d'Affaires, Mr. M. Shinnerson, Mr. Nahmias flew to Paris early last week.

Jordanians Kill NEEVY BEDUIN

Jerusalem Post Reporter

BEERSHEVA, Sunday. — An Israeli Beduin was killed today in Israel territory by Jordan shepherds who crossed the border in the Tel Arad section of the Eastern Negev. The killing was apparently the result of a fight over pasture rights, as the grazing lands on the Jordan side of the border have withered following this winter's drought.

Gov't Troops Reported Defecting in Sumatra

Indonesian rebel sources reported yesterday that Central Sumatran insurgents, supported by defecting Government troops, had entered the outskirts of Medan, capital of the province of Northern Sumatra which has hitherto remained loyal to the Jakarta Government.

Egyptians Renew Assault on Saud

The Egyptian military mission to Saudi Arabia returned to Cairo on Saturday, the Egyptian newspaper "Al-Ahram" reported yesterday. The mission was ordered to return home 10 days ago following the disclosure in Damascus of the alleged Saudi Arabian plot to assassinate Abdul Nasser and sabotage the United Arab Republic.

"The New York Times" in a dispatch from Cairo yesterday reported that the two-day cease-fire in Abdul Nasser's propaganda campaign against King Saud ended when the king did not reply to charges that he had tried to engineer a plot to destroy the Egyptian-Syrian Union.

Gaza Council Seen As 'Window-Dressing'

The establishment of the Legislative and Executive Councils in the Gaza Strip has no effect on the Israeli position, according to an opinion of political observers in Jerusalem. This can be inferred from the fact that there is no official comment on the move. Moreover, no comment is expected.

The councils have little real power, and are considered to be mere window-dressing since they are completely dependent on the Egyptian Military Government in the Strip, which is the final authority. Except for the brief interlude of Israel's occupation of the Strip at the end of 1956 and the beginning of 1957, the Egyptian military have been in complete charge since 1948.

Meir Arrives in French Ivory Coast

ABIDJAN, French Ivory Coast, Sunday (INA). — Foreign Minister Mrs. Golda Meir arrived here yesterday to attend the ceremonial opening of a new bridge in this French territory. She was met at the airport by M. Felix Gaillard, Mayor of Abidjan, Minister of Health in the French Government, and the French African leader in French West Africa.

Mrs. Meir was accompanied by the Israeli Ambassador to Paris, Mr. Jacob Tsur, and was one of the guests of honor at a dinner attended by leading French and African personalities.

Apart from taking part in the festivities to mark the bridge opening, Mrs. Meir was due to meet with leading African and French officials before leaving tomorrow for Nigeria.

Rebels Called 'Tools'

Later, President Sukarno, addressing a crowd estimated at 100,000 strong gathered outside his palace, declared that the rebel leaders were making themselves "tools" of foreign quarters. "The only people who want to change the unitary state of Indonesia are adventurers who lie to enrich themselves," he added.

Vandals Cause Damage To Jo'burg Synagogues

JOHANNESBURG, Sunday (UP). — Johannesburg's Jewish community fears the emergence of a militant anti-Semitic movement here following an unprecedented outbreak of vandalism against synagogues.

Last Monday twelve windows in the Johannesburg Great Synagogue, attended by a large proportion of the city's 80,000 Jews, were found shattered. Two days later, ten more religiously ornate, leaded windows at the large Orange Grove Synagogue were smashed. In neither case were the perpetrators of the vandalism caught, nor did there appear any specific suspects.

Volunteers in Jakarta

Thousands of Indonesian war veterans and youths yesterday called on President Sukarno to order general mobilization to crush the Central Sumatran rebellion, the Indonesian News Agency reported. The demand was made at a mass rally in Jakarta two hours after the President had returned to his capital from Bandung, West Java, after a six-day tour of inspection.

Stated Indonesian youths were only awaiting the command of Sukarno to safeguard the country.

• Condemned any attempt of foreign intervention in the internal affairs of Indonesia.

• Urged the Central Government "to direct the strength of the people against the rebellion and to avoid foreign intervention by mobilizing the people."

• Supported the measures taken by the Cabinet of the country's struggle toward progress, its steps in facing the Padang rebellion and its consequent measures in liquidating foreign capital monopoly.

Declared that Indonesian people would defend the "unitary Republic of Indonesia with every possible means at their disposal."

Earlier, during the demonstration, the resolution was read out to the meeting by Lt.-Col. Endang Dachjar, Jakarta garrison commander, the Indonesian News Agency reported.

Making it Good to Live in J'lem

Jerusalem Post Reporter

The development of Jerusalem under the present administration's 30 months of office has brought the capital to a turning point. The speed of the previous years is being rapidly overcome and the basic economic and public service requirements have been supplied to enable rapid progress towards making it "good to live in Jerusalem."

The cost in labour and money of this transition in the fortunes of the "city at the end of a Corridor" was outlined to the press yesterday by Mayor Gershon Agron and his three deputies.

Mr. Agron set out by noting that, whereas in 1953/54 only 11,000 were paid in rates, now the annual total will be 11.5m. not because of a higher rate but because more people are paying their dues, although he regretted still a smaller proportion than in the other cities.

Awaiting Approval

The city now has 42,000 ratepayers; last year some 8,000 appealed for exemption from rates and 2,800 such applications were granted, containing a loss of 11,775,000 to the city.

The 10 per cent Emergency Tax has now been incorporated in the regular budget which is awaiting Ministry of Interior approval. Mr. Agron justified this on the ground that the income from the tax will be spent on the giant reservoir at Bayit ve'an, ensuring that the capital will never again lack water.

The Deputy Mayor responsible for engineering services, Mr. Mordechai Ish-Shalom, noted that last summer was the first in history that there was no water shortage in Jerusalem. Some new quarters would be supplied with water direct from the mains, obviating the need for storage tanks on each building.

He reported that during the past 30 months, the city had spent 11.5m. on roads and pavements; 11.5m. on school buildings; 11.5m. on public gardens and 11.5m. on the drainage system. Mr. Ish-Shalom said that 75 per cent of the city was now supplied with main drainage and the network should be completed within the next four to five years.

Wipe Out Ma'bara

Some 11,22m. had been put into Jerusalem building, both private and public, during the past year, not counting the Hebrew University and Hadassah. Public health had built 2,725 dwelling rooms, and private contractors, 2,105. Talpott ma'bara will be completely liquidated this summer, he said.

1957 IMMIGRATION TOTALS 71,100

Jerusalem Post Reporter

More than half the immigrants arriving in Israel in 1957 came from East European countries, a Jewish Agency report to the General Council shows. The Council begins its sessions in Jerusalem tomorrow night.

Overall immigration in 1957 was 71,100. Largest contributors were Poland with 30,555, followed by Egypt (13,000), North Africa (12,391), Hungary (7,400), the Soviet Union (7,148), Persia (3,500) and Turkey (1,157).
